PRICE TWO CENTS

DIPLOMAS PRESENTED TO FORTY-TWO SENIORS

CLASS ADDRESS BY DR. THOMAS HOWE

President of Butler College Emphasizes Necessity of Training for Efficiency.

PROGRAM BY THE HIGH SCHOOL

Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs Give Several Pleasing Selections—Solos by Members of Class.

Elaborate exercises Thursday night marked the forty-second annual commencement at which forty-two Seniors were formally graduated and presented with diplomas certifying that they have successfully met the requirements of the Shields high school. The exercises were held at the Majestic theater which was crowded to its capacity with the parents, relatives and friends of the members of the class who desired to honor them upon this important occasion of their educational career.

The commencement exercises have a special meaning to the parents of the boys and girls who leave the high school to enter college or to take up their life work. They have reason to be proud of their sons and daughters and feel amply rewarded for their effort to keep them in school that they may be better equipped to assume the larger duties and responsibilities of successful men and women. Some of the parents, perhaps, have made sacrifices that their sons and daughters might complete their high school course, but on the night of commencement they rejoice that they were able to keep their children in school.

To the graduates the commencement exercises open the way to larger activities. As they step forward and receive their diplomas a vision of the future flashes before them. It is a moment of determination and anticipation. They see the opportunities before them and remember that because of their parents they are permitted to enter this larger field of activity better trained and equipped to fight the battles of life than their companions who were not privileged to complete their high school course. If a boy or girl is ever proud of his or her parents it is the moment that the diploma is presented.

The program was given entirely by the high school with the exception of the class address. The first number was an overture, "Night in June," by the high school orchestra. Several members of the Senior class were members of the orchestra. The Rev. W. A. Schruff, pastor of the German M. E. church, pronounced the invocation.

Two numbers, "The Violet Lady" and "Echo Song" were rendered by the Girls' Glee Club, after which the Boys' Glee Club sang "Oh, Wert Thou in the Cauld Blast" and "Sweet and Low." Both musical organizations were roundly applauded and the renditions were heartily appreciated. Miss Adelaide Gasaway, music director, lead the choruses. Miss Pearl Teekemeyer, a Senior, played the accompaniment for the girls' glee club, and Miss Hilda Howe, also a Senior, accompanied the boys' chorus.

Superintendent T. A. Mott introduced Dr. Thomas Howe, president of Butler College, who delivered the class address. He referred to the fact that he was formerly a resident of Clark county and briefly paid a tribute to southern Indiana.

Training for efficiency was the underlying thought of Dr. Howe's very able and interesting address. He reminded the members of the class of the important part played by the fathers and mothers in the exercises of the evening. "I know something of how your parents feel

PLEA OF GUILTY IS ENTERED BY TRAVIS

One of the Men Held Here for Burglary Admits Offense Before Judge Swails in Circuit Court.

SENTENCE NOT PRONOUNCED

Lawrence County Murder Trial will Open in the Jackson Circuit Court Monday.

William Travis, one of the men taken from a B. & O. Southwestern freight train near Cochran early Thursday morning and returned to this county to face the charge of burglarizing the Thomas Clothing Company and Teekemeyer's grocery, was arraigned in circuit court today and pleaded guilty. George Schill, who was also arrested at Cochran on the instructions of the local police, was arraigned before Judge Swails and entered a plea of not guilty. His trial was set for June 2.

Travis will likely receive a sentence of from two to fourteen years in the Indiana state prison in Michigan City. Sentence may not be pronounced until after the trial of Schill and he may be used as a state witness.

Travis admitted to the local police as soon as he was returned here that he was guilty of robbing the Thomas Clothing Company. He said that in the face of the evidence against him it would be useless for him to deny that he was in the store room. The police found the stolen clothing in his possession and also found other pockets. He maintained that he had no accomplice in the robbery and that he did not enter the grocery store.

Schill said that he expected to get money from friends with which to employ an attorney and he intended to fight the case against him. It is reported that he has admitted that he was in the store room of the Thomas Clothing Company but says he does not remember how he entered the room or how he left. He declares that he does not recall that he took any of the stock. Thursday he denied that he was implicated in the robbery.

The case of the Norwood, La., Bank against Owen Stanfield, et al., on note was on trial in circuit court this afternoon.

The Lawrence county murder vened to this county will go on trial Monday. The defendant is Ernest Kersey and is charged with the killing of Henry Sidwell, a Huron man. Sidwell owned the farm on which the defendant resided and lived at his house. Kersey has pleaded not guilty. This is the first murder trial to be held in Jackson county for several years.

Circuit court will adjourn this afternoon until Monday morning.

WOMAN DEALS WITH A DRUNK IN AN UNEXPECTED MANNER

Intoxicated Man Made Attempt to Speak to Woman and is Hit in the Face.

Several persons on East Second street last night between 8 and 9 o'clock are firm in their belief that there is at least one woman in this city who does not need the protection of an escort when accosted by a man in a semi-intoxicated condition. This woman was evidently returning to her home after shopping in the business section when the drunk caught up with her. Instead of the usual scream and fainting spell this woman delivered a blow to the man's head which would have been a credit to any light weight boxer. The first stroke stretched the drunk on the ground and somewhat sobered him. He arose and started to make an apology but the first stroke was followed by another and the culprit decided to beat a hasty retreat, which he did although spectators say it was not in the usual "good order." The name of neither the woman or man could be ascertained.

POLICE CALLED TO HIGH SCHOOL TO DISPERSE CROWD

Large Glass in the Door in South Entrance is Broken—Building Defaced With Paint.

The police were called to the Shields high school building about 11 o'clock Thursday night to disperse a crowd of boys, believed to be students, who were damaging the building. In the bombardment on the building the large plate glass in one of the doors at the south entrance was broken.

The building has been shamefully defaced during the last few nights as the result of the outbreak of "class spirit," which has manifested itself in rowdyism. Red paint was used in painting the numerals of several classes on the white stone plates at the main entrance. Large ugly looking black letters and numerals were painted on the concrete sidewalk leading to the main entrance on Walnut street.

The residents, especially those living in the vicinity of the building, regret to see the building damaged and disfigured and hope that there will be no more expression of "class spirit" for awhile at least. By the time the police arrived last night the crowd had scattered.

COURSE HAS BEEN ONE BIG SUCCESS

The Republican Better Foods Better Homes Cooking School Appreciated by Seymour Ladies.

STEADY INTEREST ALL WEEK

Miss Peet Will be Welcomed for a Return Date if Opportunity is Ever Open For Another Course.

Shall Miss Peet Return?

Do you want Miss Peet to return to Seymour for another series of cooking lectures and demonstrations? Why?

Write your answer and mail or hand it to the Republican office not later than Monday. Two prizes will be awarded for the best answers. First prize, carving set. Second prize, kitchen knife set.

These prizes were sent by the Fleischmann Yeast Co. to be awarded to two of the ladies attending the cooking school. Write out your answer and secure one of the sets free.

Brownstown women shared with Seymour today the opportunity of hearing the closing lecture and demonstration by Miss Peet. About thirty-five ladies formed the party which planned to come today to the Republican's free cooking school. These ladies are members of the domestic science class which has been conducted this winter at Brownstown by Mrs. A. D. Cobb. The only regret is that they were not fortunate enough to hear the entire series which Miss Peet has given.

Miss Peet's closing lecture was on fried specialties. This is a subject that is of vital interest to every housewife. This interest was manifested by the large attendance again today and by the fact that some meetings of ladies' organizations were postponed this afternoon in order that the members might attend this demonstration. The steady interest maintained day after day has been Hartford City, Ind., May 26—The body of Belle Ashbaugh, fourteen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ashbaugh, of this city, was found today stretched across a freight truck near the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks.

The girl's clothing was torn and soiled and the circumstances indicate she had been made the subject of a brutal assault, according to the police. John Starkey, seventeen, employed at a local bakery is under arrest, pending an investigation. The police say Starkey was the last person seen with the girl late last night.

MOVING LIGHT IS CAUSE OF GUESSES

Number of Residents Think that an Aeroplane Passed Over the City Thursday Night.

DISAPPEARED IN THE WEST

Biplane Sighted in Several Indiana Cities—Inventor May be Testing a New Model Craft.

That an aeroplane or a balloon passed over the city at 8 o'clock Thursday night, is the report of a number of residents who declare they watched the light for about twenty-five minutes until it disappeared in the west. The object, whatever it might have been, was so high above the ground that its shape was not discernible to those who were attracted by the moving light. The aircraft, large or small, kept in a westerly course and the light became fainter and fainter until it was entirely lost.

Many persons who have heard the report believe that the light was under a toy balloon sent up by some boy. It is said that the object moved steadily and proceeded in the same course during the entire time that the light was visible. Others are of the opinion that a toy balloon would not have carried such a light as was seen here Thursday night and think that a "real for sure enough" aeroplane passed over this section of the state.

Those who hold the latter opinion were unable to explain what such an air craft would be doing in this part of Indiana or to whom it might belong. Little attention would probably have been attracted by the moving light had it not been for the recent reports that an aeroplane is believed to have passed over a number of other Indiana cities.

A few days ago what is thought to have been an aerocraft was seen at Lebanon by a number of persons. They said that they could hear the hum of the motor but could not distinguish the size or shape of the strange craft. A motorman on a traction car out of Lebanon corroborated the statement of others and said he could clearly see the machine as it dipped down and was caught in the rays of the powerful headlight. Lebanon was thoroughly aroused over the reported appearance of the aircraft, for on the first night that it was seen a large mill was destroyed by fire and some of the residents linked the fire with the visit of the air machine.

The aeroplane was repeatedly seen at Lebanon, it is stated, and several nights ago a youth who enjoys rigging up electrical devices made a power searchlight and swept the skies with the rays. It is stated that he was successful in picking up the machine which proved to be a large bi-plane. Investigation later revealed that a man living near Delphi is experimenting with a new model of air craft and in order to protect his invention makes the tests at night. Lebanon people think that the machine reported in that city is that of the Delphi inventor who covers a wide area in his trips to test the machine.

It is possible, of course, that the Delphi birdman might have traveled as far as this city on a testing trip but that is not probable. He would likely remain closer home unless he is making a special test of speed or endurance. The aviator has not been accustomed to carrying a light on his machine.

So far as most of the local people are concerned, they are willing to accept the explanation that the light visible here Thursday night was under a toy balloon probably sent up by some mischievous youngster who afterward called the attention of his neighbors to the moving light.

FRENCH REPULSED VIOLENT ATTACKS

Paris Aroused to the Seriousness of the Situation at Verdun by the Late Reports.

LOST TRENCH RECAPTURED

Further Gains Made by the Germans, However, on Both Sides of the Meuse, War Office Says.

By United Press. Paris, May 26—French troops repulsed violent German attacks on the west bank of the Meuse, northwest of Verdun, in last night's fighting and made gains on the east bank, the war office announced today.

By a smashing counter attack the French re-captured the trench lost yesterday near Thiaumont farm, east of the Meuse. Near the farm the French advanced by a grenade attack.

Further gains by the Germans on both banks of the Meuse have aroused the French capital to the seriousness of the situation at Verdun.

ALLIES PLANNING GREAT SMASH AT THE BULGARS

Rome Dispatches Say Rumor of Movement is First Step Towards Final Peace.

By John H. Hurley, United Press Staff Correspondent.

Rome, May 26.—A terrific smash within a few weeks, aimed at eliminating the Turks and Bulgars from the war will be the allies' first great stroke for peace. This is the report in general circulation here today. Heavy allied blows from Salonika and in Mesopotamia will be followed by a tremendous offensive against the Austro-Germans in an attempt to win the war before winter.

French, English, Serbian and Italian forces are reported concentrated at Salonika awaiting the word to strike against the Bulgars and Germans in southern Serbia. Meanwhile the Russians are pressing on towards Bagdad rolling back the Turks.

REPORT THAT LANSING IS TO RESIGN IS DENIED

State Department Says Rumor is Part of the Propaganda That is Being Conducted.

By United Press.

Washington, May 26—Denying absolutely the reports that Secretary Lansing is to resign, the state department today declared circulation of the report is part of the propaganda which has been proceeding for several months. Broad intimation was given that German sources fostered the rumors.

PARIS AND BERLIN REPORT HEAVY FIGHTING AT VERDUN

Lull in Infantry Engagements Yesterday Indicate Redistribution of Troops.

By United Press.

London, May 26—Violent artillery fighting preparing the way for a renewal of the pitched battle between two great armies around Verdun, were reported in dispatches from Paris and Berlin this afternoon. The lull in infantry fighting since early yesterday coupled with heavy cannonading is thought to indicate a redistribution of forces on both sides for another bloody struggle. The new battle may have already begun.

TAFT FOR ROOSEVELT?

This is the Rumor Heard by Republican Leaders.

By United Press.

Washington, May 26—If Colonel Roosevelt wins the nomination William Howard Taft will be for him. This news came to Republican leaders today from sources close to both Roosevelt and Taft. Taft was seen at the convention of the Peace League and asked about the report.

He would only chuckle and shake his head when questioned. Finally between choruses he said: "Why should I come in for such a violent hypothesis?"

CLASS ADDRESS BY

when they have succeeded in bringing you here," he said. "I know something of their anxiety in wondering if they were doing the right thing at the right time." He impressed upon the class that the parents should be honored for what they have done.

Dr. Howe spoke of the work that is required by the high school. Speaking to the class he said, "You have stood the test and I want to congratulate you that you have lived thus far in good health."

At this point he said that sound physical condition is essential to success. He stated that he knew a man who was a hard student and who overcame many obstacles with the result that his future was very bright. But just as he was ready to reach for the great successes of life which were before him he was compelled to step back and surrender them to some one else because his health had failed and he was unable to continue his endeavors. Plenty of sleep and plenty of exercise together with regular habits are required for a sound body, he declared.

"The thinking men and women are taking stock of you," he said. Thousands upon thousands and thousands of boys and girls have been or will be graduated from the schools and colleges of this country this spring. You are going out into a new world. Conditions are different today than they were before August 1914 and the world expects more of you."

He then recounted the terrible loss of life in Europe as a result of the war, and said that the burdens which would have been shared by the soldiers who have been killed must be carried by the young men and women of this country. The thinking men and women are taking stock of the graduates, he said, to determine if they are able to assume their part of the responsibilities.

The danger of wasting strength by taking into the body those things which tend to tear it down was emphasized by the speaker. It is not a question of religion or church, but one of efficiency, he stated. He related the action of a great surgeon who refused wine at a banquet in his honor because he felt that it was injurious to his system. The surgeon explained that human life was placed in his care and in the delicate operations he needed strong nerves and a steady hand.

"As a man thinks so he is," declared the speaker. He admonished the boys and girls to refrain from bad thoughts and to keep away from distasteful stories. "The next few years will be a critical time in your lives. They are dangerous years so you must keep close to the faith of your fathers and mothers. What we want are dependable, efficient and trained men and women."

Dr. Howe declared he hoped that the members of the class could continue their educational course but said that the idea that large libraries and laboratories were needed for training in efficiency was erroneous. He pointed to the example of Lincoln who made a close study of the few books at his command, notably the Bible and the works of William Shakespeare. He reminded the class that Lincoln was a man of clean thought and robust health due to his mode of living. The learning which Lincoln obtained from his few books was always at his command and as a result the world was given the famous Gettysburg speech, almost unparalleled in all literature.

The speaker told the class that the opportunities were awaiting them. There are always places for the boy and girl who is capable, qualified and trained but that success depended upon the individual. The address was given in Dr. Howe's direct but forceful manner and made a deep impression upon the Seniors. His remarks were appreciated by the audience as indicated by the general applause as he retired from the platform.

Miss Lois Casey, a member of the graduating class, delighted the audience with a vocal solo, "In the Fields of Ballyclarke," which was rendered in a very charming manner. She possesses a sweet voice and she had splendid control over her tones. Miss Rachel Barbour, another member of the class, sang "From the Land of the Sky Blue Water." She has a strong voice of exceptional clearness and her solo was greatly appreciated. Miss Howe accompanied both soloists.

Miss Andrews, principal of the high school, presented the diplomas to the members of the class. She spoke in a highly commendatory manner of the work and personality of the individual members of the graduating body. She recalled the statement of Dr. Howe for the necessity of preparation and urged them to be true to the ideals which had been constantly held before them during their high school career. Following her remarks she presented the diplomas in behalf of the school board, superintendent and teachers.

The Rev. J. H. Carnes, pastor of the First M. E. church, pronounced the benediction. Scores of the audience went to the platform at the close of the exercises and congratulated the members of the class.

Wylie was graduated from Jefferson College, Canonsburg, Penn., in 1810. He studied theology and entered the Presbyterian ministry. At the age of 23 he was elected president of Jefferson College. On May 5, 1828 he was elected president of Indiana College.

For more than twenty years Wylie was among the foremost educators of the west, if not "the strongest man west of the mountains."

COURSE HAS BEEN ONE BIG SUCCESS

one of the gratifying features of the series of cooking lessons given by the Republican.

The course which closed in Society Hall today has been a success from every standpoint. The talks given by Miss Peet have met the approval of the large crowds of women who have heard her and brought out many of the same women day after day through the week. Every cookery lesson has been enjoyed and the foods prepared by Miss Peet's skillful fingers have received extravagant praise. During the week a number of ladies from the country and smaller towns of the country have come to Seymour to be present and get the benefit to be derived from the cooking school. The number of visitors from out of Seymour has grown each day during the week.

Women here say they have never eaten better cake than Miss Peet has baked and they have learned just how to bake the same kind of cake. Her pastry, they say, is exceptional and she has imparted the secret of making it. They have liked her doughnuts and many have tried her recipe for making them. Indeed everything she has prepared this week has been extremely good and many of her recipes have been tried out for the pleasure of the home folks.

"Nothing like this course of lectures has ever been given here before," said one of the leading women of the city. "We owe the Republican a vote of thanks and are grateful indeed to Miss Peet for the instruction and inspiration she has given us. It is hoped that she will return to Seymour in the near future and remain with us longer." If Miss Peet ever returns to Seymour she will be assured in advance of a hearty reception by all the ladies both in Seymour and in the surrounding country.

As announced by Miss Peet, the recipe of Codfish Balls demonstrated by her today at the Republican Better Foods Better Homes School in Society Hall, is given below together with some other interesting recipes submitted by her.

CODFISH BALLS.
2 cupfuls mashed potatoes, 1½ cupfuls shredded codfish, 1 egg, 1 tablespoonful crisco melted, ½ teaspoonful pepper.

Put codfish in wire strainer, let cold water run through and squeeze dry. Mix the hot, unseasoned potatoes with codfish. To this add the melted crisco, beaten egg and pepper. Beat well. Shape in balls and fry in deep crisco until a golden brown color.

YELLOW SPONGE CAKE.

CREDIT TO PARENTS.

In the manifestation of the joy and enthusiasm attending the commencement exercises we sometimes overlook the fact that a large share of the credit and honor for the occasion belongs to the parents of the members of the class. The fathers and mothers make it possible for the children to complete their school course so they will be better equipped to go out into the world and face the problems of life. The education of the child frequently means longer working hours, the relinquishment of individual wants and even serious sacrifices of which the son or daughter does not know.

Parents desire to place their children in a position where they can get the most out of their school life. Many of the fathers and mothers were not privileged to complete even their common school course and know the disadvantages of the lack of school training and are willing to make these sacrifices that their children may not be thus handicapped in their battles with life. The ambition of their life is to give their children an equal chance for success. Parents who give their children an education, frequently against big odds, are credited with a great success. But they may be so wrapped up in the great ambition of their lives that they do not take time to stop and really see what they are themselves doing. An education is the greatest heritage that a father or mother can leave for their children. Its cash value cannot be estimated. It is a practical working fortune and like any other asset its value depends upon the individual in charge of it.

In calling attention to the honor that is due the parents there is no thought of minimizing the credit that is due the thousands of graduates from the public schools throughout the country. The graduates are worthy of all the praise that is accorded them for the successful completion of their school career. The diploma represents a large amount of work, determination and concentration. It certifies that they have the frame work for assuming some of the responsibilities of life and that the school authorities have confidence in their future success.

A high school course alone never made a successful man or woman. It only prepares. The opportunities have been offered and the graduates have taken advantage of them. What they will make out of the training depends solely upon them. Success is largely an individual thing. The diploma is so much worthless paper unless the graduate can put into practice the principles which it represents. A diploma may get a position for a man but it has never held the place for him. That can only be done by the individual. Education is the stepping stone to success. Sometimes it is mistaken for success itself.

The various avenues of life are opened unto the graduates. Places of honor and responsibility are available. The struggle of life calls for determination. The way will not be free of obstacles and misfortunes. But the hindrances will be helpful in equipping the students to recognize success when they meet it and to hold it after they obtain it. They are a part of life's practical education.

The graduates from the local high school enter the larger field of activity under the most favorable conditions. They have met the requirements of the school and are prepared to march forward towards their goal. The parents have done their part so far as the high school education is concerned. The students are now responsible for their own welfare more than ever before. Life has been placed in their hands and with preservation and determination they will win.

ANOTHER SECOND STREET SALOON (?)

In the "People's Say-So" column of the Reunblean on Wednesday of this week appeared an article that deserves more than casual reading. The question is whether the people of Seymour want another saloon located on one of the prominent corners of Second street.

A petition has been filed with the County Commissioners asking the privilege of changing location from the old Phil Meeh room to the Giger corner at Second street and Indianapolis avenue. This corner is directly in the line of travel to and from the interurban station and in part to the steam railroad stations. Practically all the automobile travel through Seymour passes along Second street from Ewing to Chestnut. There are six saloons already within these two blocks and adding another only makes the appearance of our city's moral standard that much lower in the eyes of our visitors.

This petition to change location will be acted upon by the County Commissioners the first Monday in June, only about ten days hence. If Seymour has no objection to offer the saloon will be re-located on this corner. If Seymour does object to another saloon on Second street it can be prevented by saying so to the County Commissioners.

The Safety First exhibit which will be open to the public in Seymour on Monday has been seen with great interest by large crowds at various points on the Baltimore & Ohio system. The exhibit is unusual. It was arranged by Secretary Lane and President Willard, of the B. & O., and is carried in nine steel coaches. The exhibit shows what the government is doing for the protection of life and health throughout the country. In addition a exhibit by the weather bureau and by the department of war are shown.

Rome dispatches say that the allies are planning a great smash against the Bulgars and Turks as a final stroke for peace. It's rather paradoxical to talk peace in terms of "smashing blows" and "terrific drives" but nothing is strange in war.

To All Friends of the G. A. R.

Next Sunday, May 28, the members of Seymour Post G. A. R. will observe their annual Memorial Sunday with services at St. Paul church. All friends of the noble men of G. A. R., who wish to honor them and the great cause for which they fought and sacrificed, are very kindly and cordially invited to attend the service at 10:30 a. m. m27d H. R. Boothe, pastor.

The Ottos will be strengthened by the addition of the Seymour players in the Red Sox lineup, namely: Combs, outfielder; McOske, infielder, and Voyls, pitcher. The lineup of the team will probably be as follows: Herman, c., Voyls, p., Moritz, 1 b., McOske, 2 b., Fletcher, 3 b., C. Greene, s. s., Combs, l. f., Thomas, C. F., W. Greene, r. f., Furnish and Harris, utility. Manager Otto Bauermeister will continue to have charge of the team, which will play its first game with the new lineup Sunday, when the Pirates, of Columbus, will be played. The strongest teams available will be brought here, and, when the local team gets to working together, they should be able to hold their own with the best of them.

The heavy expense of putting the Red Sox on the field was the main factor in the owners deciding to replace the team with the local performers. Several of the out-of-town players were being paid fancy prices for their services, prices which at times seemed altogether out of proportion to their diamond performances. This, together with the fact that local fans refused to wax enthusiastic over a team of outsiders, especially when they did not think they were playing the brand of ball which was to be expected of them, made the financial problem of the management a difficult one indeed.

It is believed, however, that with a fast, aggressive team of youngsters, all home players, the local fans will be more generous in their support. The lineup includes some very promising material, and from all indications, after they have been playing together for a time, should make an exceptionally fast team. The make-up of the team will be changed wherever changes seem necessary, until the best possible combination is secured.

SELF ADMIRATION

MUST RUN TO AVOID KILLING.

Court Rules It's Murder to Stand When Life Is Threatened.

Trenton, N. J.—In an opinion filed here recently by Chief Justice Gummere sustaining a conviction of murder in the second degree the supreme court says:

"A person upon whom an assault is made so violent in its character as to endanger his life or threatens him with serious bodily harm is not justified or excusable in standing his ground and killing his assailant if he can avoid the impending danger by retreating."

The case was that of Nunzi di Maria of Harrison, who was sentenced to from twenty to thirty years in prison for shooting Frank Barber.

The charge of the trial court to the jury regarding the law of self defense was the only ground for reversal of the conviction. The instruction objected to was that the defendant had a right to save his own life.

CHAPTER XI.

At the Boreas Club.

One crisp and moderately cold day in January, a Saturday afternoon that the store rules once in so often allowed Mary Alice for her own, the doorbells rang.

"Mary Alice, Mary Alice," called Little Dick. "The's a nawful big automobile out in front and it's Mr. Willett and he says for you to hurry he's goin' to take you ridin' and he says you needn't put on your coat 'cause he's got a grea' big fur one for you to wear and hurry up down."

"I thought," said the girl, as she slid away from the house with Mary Alice cuddled into the low passenger's seat, well wrapped in furs, "I thought you said your father didn't want you to use his cars."

"Isn't father's; it's Stacey's run-about. I asked him to lend it to me and he was very nice about it."

"Then you're getting along better with him?"

"Looks that way. I've really learned a lot. My, how he has gone over me! But now I'm getting so I'm rather useful to him. He's quite pleasant, most of the time."

Mary Alice did not get too many automobile rides. The cold air, as they moved swiftly through the frozen country, bit her cheeks and made them redder; it brought the tears to her eyes and made them brighter. She snuggled down contentedly and enjoyed herself exceedingly, and she liked Francis Willett better than ever.

"This is the life," hummed Francis, and the velvety little French engine hummed in unison. Oh, say, Mary Alice, if only I had some money of my own!"

"I don't see but that you're doing nicely without any."

"You don't know. It's a case of hold back with me day in and day out. My clothes are getting shabby, I haven't had a new tie for month, and I black my own shoes every morning by lamp-light. This getting up before day in the dead of winter's no fun."

"But isn't it doing you good?"

"Oh, I suppose so. It's what my father wanted. By George, Mary Alice, there's one person who's pleased! You know when I first came home he had hard work to speak to me, poor old chap. But nowadays, when he meets my smiling, businesslike phiz at the breakfast table, he just beams. It's one of the two things that make my hard, barren existence supportable."

"What's the other?" asked the girl innocently.

"You?"

Mary Alice added a nice pink blush to the red already wind-kissed upon her cheeks.

"Fiddlesticks!" she said.

"Fiddle nothing," said Francis.

"You're a dandy girl, Mary Alice. I love you to distraction."

"Oh, Francis, you're so absurd. You mustn't make love to me. I don't even think your father'd like it if he knew you were taking me to drive. It's nice to be friends, but—oh, please don't make it any stronger than that!"

"What talk have you?" demanded Francis. "My father thinks you're just about right, I can tell you. 'Way back when you and I were kids he used to tell me what a pretty little thing you were and how much sense you had."

"That was because we were little."

"Doesn't make any diff. You're prettier now than ever, and you've got ten times as much sense. Listen to me! You don't know my dad. Do you think he has any foolish ideas about 'class' and 'exclusiveness' and all that? Why, when he was my age he was poor as—as I am. Poorer; he got only six dollars a week."

"But he was a college man."

"He earned his way through—he and Uncle Billy Jackson. That's why they're such pals. Uncle Billy Jackson thinks you're great, Mary Alice."

"He hasn't seen me for four or five years. Let's not argue. For goodness' sake, where are we, anyhow? Oh, say, Mary Alice, if only I had some money of my own!"

"I don't see but that you're doing nicely without any."

"You don't know. It's a case of hold back with me day in and day out. My clothes are getting shabby, I haven't had a new tie for month, and I black my own shoes every morning by lamp-light. This getting up before day in the dead of winter's no fun."

"But isn't it doing you good?"

"Oh, I suppose so. It's what my father wanted. By George, Mary Alice, there's one person who's pleased! You know when I first came home he had hard work to speak to me, poor old chap. But nowadays, when he meets my smiling, businesslike phiz at the breakfast table, he just beams. It's one of the two things that make my hard, barren existence supportable."

Francis turned the car over to an attendant at the clubhouse steps and led Mary Alice into the great living room.

"Want something to warm you up a mite?" asked her host.

"No, indeed, I'm not a bit chilled."

"Well, then, after we've had our slide. Now let's see. You'll need some heavier boots, and mittens, and a stocking cap. Wait here a few minutes; I'll be right back."

He disappeared, leaving Mary Alice standing before the broad hearth, where a big fire crackled cheerily. A couple of silent servitors glided about, attending upon the guests who grouped themselves about small tables, where they laughed over their tea. Mary Alice knew that the Boreas club was made up of the best people of Shefield and its suburbs. Moreover, she knew that Francis Willett's social position gave him the entree wherever such people gathered. That he was a member and that she was his guest gave her a pleasant sensation of belonging there herself.

Francis came back, followed by a respectful maid, who carried sundry articles of apparel, including a gay-patterned mackinaw and stout outing boots.

"Just go with Teresa," said her escort. "She'll fix you up in a jiffy." Together they climbed the long slope to the top of the toboggan chute. Laughing, shouting, excited coasters, all carefully dressed in garments designed for this particular sport, crowded the broad starting platform. Nearly everybody knew Francis and greeted him noisily and cordially. Many cast inquiring glances Mary Alice's way; she was too pretty to be ignored.

Francis procured from somewhere a luxurious, cushioned toboggan, fitted with shiny nickelized rails and a chime of blinding bells. He looked, so Mary Alice thought, the most stunning young man in the crowd. Perhaps the pattern of his mackinaw was a little the most striking; he certainly wore his tasseled cap with a rakish and fetching air. A tall, graceful figure, he carried himself with easy assurance, his complacent, confident smile quite in keeping with his position in this world of "nice" people.

If the occasion arose, he introduced Mary Alice to his women friends or presented Mr. This and Mr. That with fine courtesy. Mary Alice was not in the least displeased to sense in Francis Willett's attitude, a sort of pride.

With the early winter darkness, long lines of electric lamps lighted the slide and dotted the lake. More and more people appeared to swell the carnival throng. Mary Alice felt its pictur-esque, its color, its bewildering novelty. After the first breath-taking initiation she lost her keen edge of fear, but the long plunge at the "jumping-off place" maintained its fascinating terror.

"It's getting overcrowded," at length announced Francis. "We don't get our turn very often; the waits are too long. Let's go to the clubhouse and order supper."

"Oh, but I must be home for supper," insisted Mary Alice. "The family will worry. It has been perfectly splendid, Francis. You've been an old dear to give me such a heavenly afternoon."

"Oh, well, if you must," he conceded, after five minutes of useless argument. "Anyhow, we'll have something hot before we start."

When Mary Alice had discarded her borrowed costume and returned to the big living room, she found Francis there alone. He looked down at her, his eyes ardent. Mary Alice turned away. She suddenly found it a little hard to meet that boyish, eager look. One of the pussy-footed serving men brought her a big chair and placed a hassock under her feet. Francis said something to him, which Mary Alice failed to catch. The serving man came back with a tray, placed a little table between Francis and Mary Alice, and on it set two small earthen mugs, out of which a vapor curled in attenuated shreds.

"What's that, chocolate?" asked Mary Alice. Her mouth began to water delicately. She picked up the mug and set it to her lips.

"Ugh!" She put it hastily back on the table and looked gravely at the young man. He was placidly sipping the mixture.

"What is that, Francis?"

"This? Tom-and-Jerry, of course. Just the thing for a cold day like—Why, Mary Alice, what's the matter?"

"I wish you—I don't like—can't I have a glass of water?"

"Sure, sure! But you'd better have chocolate." He rang a bell and directed the serving man to bring it. "I don't know—I suppose you're offended. I thought you'd like the other. Every body else does."

He finished his mug hastily, as if fearing that something might cheat him of it, and displayed a half-annoyed embarrassment.

"I'm sorry," said the girl. "I didn't mean—it surprised me. You wouldn't blame me if I refused to drink—arson or something like that, would you?"

"But this isn't—"

"Yes, it is. To me it's no different from any other poison, only a little slower, and—it makes people suffer so, Francis! You don't know, you can't know. Forgive me. I didn't mean to spoil your good time."

"Spoil nothing," cried Francis. "Why, Mary Alice, this has been the most perfect day I ever spent. Oh, Mary Alice, dear little pretty Mary Alice, let's you and me get married!"

"Don't start in again, Francis! I mustn't let you talk like that especially when you've been—taking that—"

"That's hardly little mugful? Pooh! But never mind, Mary Alice. I'll make a bargain with you. I don't care a cent for it. I like it, sometimes. But it'll never get the best of—"

"I thought it got you expelled from college."

Francis Willett bounded out of his chair as if he had been shot at. He stood over his companion, eyes blazing.

"Don't you dare to talk like that to me, Mary Alice Brown!" he cried fiercely. "Do you think I'm nothing but a kid? Look here; I'll show you."

He picked up the second mug, which she had set down.

"Will you marry me, or won't you? Speak quick, now. You don't like this stuff—you're afraid of it. You say it's poison. Well, then, I'll give you your choice. Say you'll marry me—give me your promise—and I'll give you mine never to touch another drop as long as I live. I'm in earnest. You be the same. Come, what's the verdict?"

He set the little mug to his lips. Mary Alice threw herself out of her chair and struck at the cup. Francis waved it out of her reach, and the contents spilled.

"Ouch!" said Francis. "It's running up my sleeve."

He set aside the mug, and Mary Alice sent it spinning into the fireplace, where the liquor sizzled and spat like a snake among the coals.

"Let's go home," begged Mary Alice.

"After your chocolate," said Francis.

Out in the open, under the early stars, they sped along the frozen country roads again. Mary Alice said nothing for a long time. Francis, subdued and half-apologetic, gave his entire attention to the wheel.

"That wasn't a bit nice of you, Francis Willett," the girl said, at last. "You weren't fair with me. You haven't any right to make me take the responsibility of what you do."

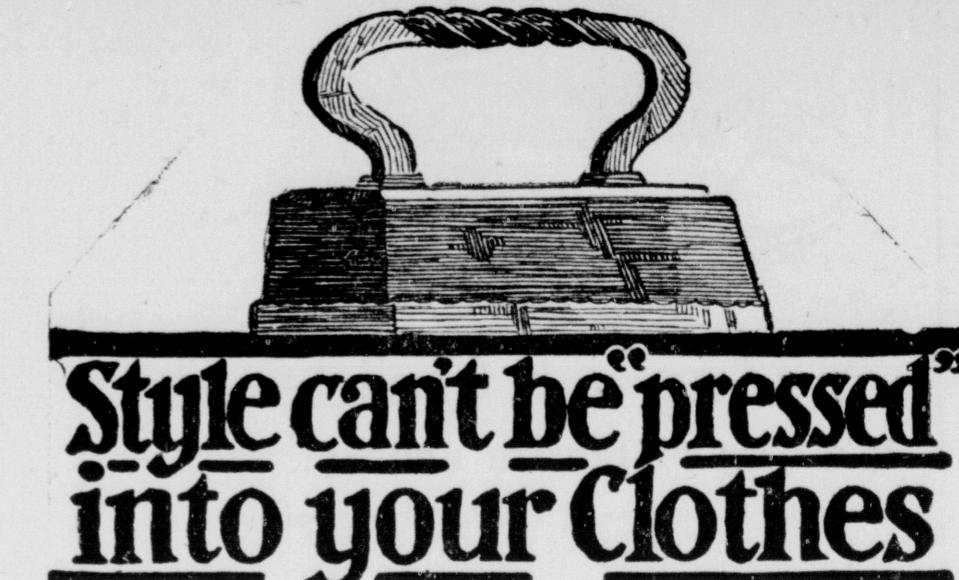

"I meant it," said Francis. He was a trifle glum. "I still mean it."

"Listen, Francis," began Mary Alice, gently. "You want me to love you against my better judgment. You want me to do a thing that would just about break your mother's heart. She wouldn't have you marry a shopgirl. Besides, how can I know? You're very nice—when you want to be. But you're rich—a rich man's son. I'm poor—a laborer's daughter. My mother used to take in washing. Lots of girls would jump at the chance, but I can't do it. Something tells me not to. Why don't you make me the promise, anyhow? It was your own suggestion. I didn't ask it of you. I do ask it now. If you do well you will be rich some day, like your father. He is such a good man. You said yourself it was the one thing—"

"One of the two things."

"One of the things that made you go on trying. Let's make a bargain. Give me three years—two years. Go on and do your best. Promise to keep from drinking just as you said you could, and when I'll make you a promise. If your father and mother want you to marry me at the end of the two years, I'll do it, provided you keep your promise."

Francis Willett was twenty-one years old, legally a man, actually a boy. He had tried the high hand and

Style can't be "pressed" into your Clothes

A tailor's goose can put a veneer of style into your clothes—but the beauty that is more than skin deep requires careful, skillful masterly hand tailoring—the kind that goes into made to measure clothes.

There's more hand tailoring employed in a custom made suit than in any other kind—hand tailoring is a time-honored custom method—it gives the clothes their style permanency.

Hand tailoring is just one of the advantages that custom tailored clothes provide—their styles are more distinctive and their woolens of a really worth while individuality.

you whipped Lutey Travers for tipping over my washing. But I'm not going to spoil your life for you and break your mother's heart. G-g-good night!"

She turned and ran up the steps, past the door which little Dick obligingly held open for her, and on up to her room.

A precocious child who had been attending one of the public kindergartens fell from a ladder. Her mother caught her up from the ground in terror, exclaiming:

"Oh, darling, how did you fall?"

"Vertically," replied the child, with a second's hesitation.

GERMANS GAIN FRENCH TRENCH

Heavy Bombardment Hill 304
Presages Attack.

AUSTRIANS KEEP UP ADVANCE

Move Forward In Three Sectors In the Drive Toward the Vicenza Plain—Take 24,400 Italian Prisoners and Many Guns.

Paris, May 26.—The crown prince's forces who recaptured Ft. Douaumont on the east bank of the Meuse, followed up that success with a series of attempts to force back the French lines between the Bois D'Haudmont and the Thiaumont farm.

This line runs in a northwest and southeast direction, a little to the west of Douaumont village, and includes the Haudmont quarries, on the edge of the Bois D'Houcourt, where the Germans occupied a trench element. The attacks are described in the French official communiqué as having been accompanied by heavy losses to the attacking forces.

The Germans made no further infantry attack on the west bank of the Meuse in the course of the day, but the intensity of their bombardment may be regarded as a forerunner of another attempt to capture this height.

In the course of the operations on the east bank of the river, the Germans, repeating their attacks on the region east of the Cete Du Poivre, gained a footing in a French trench north of the Haudmont quarries. This was the only infantry attack launched by the Germans on either side of the river during the night.

Continued advances were made by the Austrians in three sectors in the drive toward the Vicenza plain, in northeastern Italy. The column advancing through the Val Sugana occupied the Salubio ridge, the column in the Val Astico is nearing the Val Assa and the forces which recently drove the Italians back from their position on Monte Meggio and the Cima Dei Laghi are now nearing the Posina valley, a continuation of the Val Terragnolo.

In the official statement issued in Vienna, the Austrian war office gives the total of the prisoners taken so far in the Italian campaign as 24,400, and says that 251 guns and 101 machine guns have been captured.

The Austrian authorities threaten action against the Italian population of the region covered by the Austrian advance, because the civilians have left their homes and crossed the border into Italy. In the official statement, the Austrian war office says that these refugees will be "called to account" for leaving their "fatherland."

A semi-official statement, issued in Rome, describes the situation on the Arsiero plateau as still grave, but not alarming.

ALLOT GERMAN MEAT SUPPLY

New Food Dictator Takes Over the Supply For Distribution.

Berlin, May 26.—The entire meat supply of the German empire was taken over by the government. Future distribution of meat will be carried on by the meat bureau, one of the new departments created under the food dictatorship.

Rules for distribution of meat and fixed scales of prices will not be announced until a census is taken of all the meat provisions in Germany.

In giving out the supply preference will be shown to the army, the people being urged to eat more vegetables. In fact, one of the functions of the new food department will be to devise new vegetable dishes for the people to take the accustomed place of meat.

INJUNCTION AGAINST FIGHT

Action Is Result of Appeal by Indianapolis Church Federation.

Indianapolis, May 26.—A temporary restraining order, directed against promoters and participants in the boxing card announced for Federal League baseball park the night of May 29, was issued by Judge Moll of superior court, room 5, on petition of Prosecutor Alvah J. Rucker.

Prosecutor Rucker filed the petition after he had received a letter from Governor Ralston, asking him to stop the proposed "fights." A hearing will be held before Judge Moll Monday morning, the day of the proposed exhibition, to determine if a permanent order shall be issued.

Washington, May 26.—The $43,000 rivers and harbors bill, alleged to be "half pork," was practically doomed in the senate when, on a test vote, the filibusters won, 50 to 29. The vote was taken on Senator Kenyon's motion to hold up expenditure of $200,000 on the Brazos river in Texas, pending further investigation by the army engineers.

SCHOOL GIRLS AID DEFENSE

Seventh Venire Summoned In the Will Orpet Murder Case.

Chicago, May 26.—Marian Lambert's little clique of schoolgirl friends will take the witness stand in defense of Will Orpet on trial in Waukegan, for alleged murder of his one-time sweetheart. The entire list of witnesses subpoenaed by the defense—the twenty persons upon whom Orpet's lawyers depend to free him from the charge of murdering his former sweetheart—was obtained.

The poisoned girl's father and mother head the list. Their testimony is not expected to aid the defense much.

Summoning of the seventh venire—which will make a total of 736 men called for jury service in the case—has begun.

WAITE CALMLY TELLS OF CRIMES

Bares Sordid Story of Murders and Raids.

PLANNED TO KILL THREE

Declares He Wanted Bacteria to Kill Mr. and Mrs. Peck and Miss Peck, the Maiden Aunt—Tells of Persistent Stealing.

New York, May 26.—Arthur Warren Waite, as cool's if he was discussing the weather, told the jury in the criminal branch of the supreme court how he had caused the death of Mrs. John E. Peck by bacteria, how he had poisoned and then smothered John E. Peck, and then how he tried to kill Miss Catherine Peck, maiden sister of his father-in-law.

As he spoke, hardly above a conversational tone, perfectly at his ease, the courtroom from which women had been excluded, was still as death. Jurors, wearied by the long session, sat bolt upright or leaned forward to catch every word. Assistant District Attorneys Brothers, Dooling and Macnuso flanked by the state's alienists, sat intent, the men in the courtroom crept to the seats nearest the bar railing and only Justice Shearn, of all the courtroom, sat immovable and impassive, gazing straight ahead of him.

The supreme moment of the man's session on the witness stand had come a half hour after the session had convened. Then, in reply to the questions of Walter R. Deuel, his counsel, following his confession of attempts to destroy Miss Peck, he said in a surprised tone:

"Why, I wanted those bacteria to kill those three persons—Mr. Peck, Mrs. Peck and Miss Peck, the maiden aunt."

Then after telling how he had tried to kill Miss Peck, who had befriended him with lavish presents, Mr. Deuel came to a question which held every one.

"Do you remember when Mrs. Peck came to visit you?"

"Yes, let me see, really I cannot remember exactly, she and Mrs. Waite came some time in January. I cannot remember exactly when."

"Did you give her bacteria?"

"Why, certainly. I got the contents of about six test tubes of the bacilli of diphtheria, pneumonia, influenza and reduced them to one tube and gave them to her."

Then Waite told of giving the victim veronal, and her death.

Men, even the jurors, who had been looking wonderingly at Mr. Deuel, apparently sending his client straight to the death house, suddenly realized what the object was. Back of the state's alienists sat the alienists of the defense, Dr. Diefendorf and Dr. Karpas, industriously taking notes or making suggestions about questions. It was all to afford a basis for a hypothetical question, the answer to which would be that no man who had committed such a series of crimes could be sane.

There were some further questions in which the witness said that he had not given the aged woman any poison—or anything else except the bacilli and the veronal. She had favored the cremation herself. The family had agreed to it. Then came the confession about John E. Peck, in which he told of the dozen or more ways he had attempted to kill the seventy-two-year-old druggist.

He had used the germs of diphtheria, pneumonia, typhoid, influenza, and then finally gave his father-in-law arsenic in his food and when he had become ill, had chloroformed him.

The rest of the story had been told by the wife on the stand and by Dr. Moore. It told of his going into his wife's room where he broke the news, and of the telephoning to the doctor. He told of the Grand Rapids trip, the curiosity about the autopsy, his return to New York, the encounter with Mrs. Horton, and finally about his deals with the undertakers.

Waite on the stand continued his narrative of steady persistent stealing from boyhood until the present, even when it came to Miss Catherine Peck, who had proven a most generous friend. Waite was on the stand five hours and forty-five minutes. Cross examination is to follow.

Racing at Hawthorne.

Chicago, May 26.—Racing will be permitted at the Hawthorne race track, but no gambling will be allowed, according to Sheriff John E. Woman Overcome by Paint Fumes.

Elwood, Ind., May 26.—While painting flowers at her home Mrs. H. C. Flint was overcome by the paint fumes and was found unconscious by her husband who returned home an hour later. Her condition is critical.

END OF WAR IS NOT IN SIGHT

Time to Offer to Mediate Not Opportune—Wilson.

ANXIOUS TO AID PEACE MOVE

Lloyd's, in London, is Offering Three to One Against the War Ending by Dec. 1, 1916—President Would Insure Future Peace.

Washington, May 26.—President Wilson explained to callers at the executive office that he did not believe an offer to mediate in the European war would be opportune at the present moment. To be effective, the president explained, an offer of mediation must come at a time when it is likely to be favorably considered by all the belligerents. That time, the president believes, has not yet arrived.

Although the president's attitude on the subject has been known to persons in his counsel, the direct statement coming from the president himself has added further emphasis to the hopelessness of persuading the belligerents to enter peace parleys. All the information from the entente powers now indicates that Germany's peace suggestions will not be entertained. Lloyd's is now offering three to one against the war ending Dec. 1, 1916.

President Wilson is, of course, willing to communicate any peace proposal which Germany cares to make to the entente, but he is not willing to endorse the German proposal to the extent of advising the entente to accept or even consider it.

The fact that Mr. Wilson does not consider the time opportune to offer mediation does not imply that the president is any the less anxious to do everything possible to aid in bringing the European conflict to a close.

The president is understood to have been closely following the trend of public opinion in all the belligerent countries with a view to ascertaining whatever peace prospects there may be.

When the time to discuss peace arrives, it is said, the president will favor the discussion of measures to insure the future peace of the world through the establishment of some international tribunal.

It is said that the president may develop this idea in his address before the League to Enforce Peace, which meets here.

RETAIN BAN ON AMUSEMENTS

Methodist Conference Votes Down Proposal to Abolish Rule.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., May 26.—Dancing, card playing and theater-going are still under the ban of the Methodist Episcopal church and members who indulge in these diversions are liable to expulsion under the laws of the church. The vote of the general conference stood 434 to 360 on the proposal to abolish the rule against these diversions.

The conference ordered that all debate be shut off and the voting was conducted without demonstration. Every member was required to vote on a slip of paper bearing his name, so that his position on the question will appear in the records of the conference. Had it not been for the solid opposition of the negro delegations the ban might have been lifted.

John Swierz Bound Over to Grand Jury in $3,000 Bond.

Youngstown, O., May 26.—At the completion of his preliminary hearing before Justice E. M. Faust, John Swierz, a Pole, was bound over to the grand jury under $3,000 bond, on the technical charge of secreting explosives in the property of another.

Swierz is alleged to have planned to blow up the plant of the William Tod company, here, three weeks ago. His alleged intentions were disclosed to United States secret service officers by Ernest Ludwig, Austro-Hungarian consul at Cleveland, to whom Swierz went for aid.

Vermont Democrats Endorse Wilson.

Burlington, Vt., May 26.—The Democratic state convention, in session here, expressed its approval of the Wilson administration and unanimously pledged the support of the Democracy of Vermont by instructing the eight delegates to the national convention to support him, first, last and the seventy-two-year-old druggist.

He had used the germs of diphtheria, pneumonia, typhoid, influenza, and then finally gave his father-in-law arsenic in his food and when he had become ill, had chloroformed him.

The rest of the story had been told by the wife on the stand and by Dr. Moore. It told of his going into his wife's room where he broke the news, and of the telephoning to the doctor. Sunday School Lesson

(Second Quarter)

Lesson 9

The Council at Jerusalem, Acts 15:22-23.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free.—Gal. 5:1.

This lesson tells of a lot of trouble which certain people caused by teaching that faith in Jesus Christ was not enough to save any one unless they were also circumcised. These people are spoken of as "Pharisees who believed" (verses 1, 5). The Lord Jesus did not believe in all who said that they believed in Him, for He knew all men (John ii, 23-25). Any one who does not see a full salvation in the finished work of the Lord Jesus for all who receive Him, apart from any works of ours, does not understand God's way of saving people and cannot be a true believer. Ever since the devil taught Cain that he could do or bring was sufficient without any sacrifice or shedding of blood he has continued so to teach, or else that the blood of Christ is not sufficient without some works of ours, as a Sunday school superintendent once told me that he could not know that he was saved till he had done his part. From the day that the devil lied to Eve and made God a liar he has been on the same line to the present time. The argument in Rom. iv is full and clear—that salvation is wholly apart from any works of ours and that Abraham was a righteous man before God, apart from circumcision, and the teaching is the same in all the epistles. Yet the false teachers continue to this day.

We might think that the testimony of Paul and Barnabas as to what they had seen the Lord do in the way of saving uncircumcised gentiles would silence these disturbers at Antioch, but the devil is very persistent and can make a lot of trouble, and the Antioch believers decided to refer the matter to the apostles and elders at Jerusalem by sending Paul and Barnabas as their committee. See how along the way as they journeyed they caused great joy unto the brethren as they declared all things that God had done with them (verses 3, 4), and thus this seemingly unnecessary journey was made to glorify God. Rom. viii, 28, is always helpful.

When they appeared before the council at Jerusalem there was much disputing there also, so it would seem that the false teachers had not all left the city. When Peter found his opportunity he told, or reminded them, how God had sent His Spirit upon the uncircumcised company gathered in the home of Cornelius (verses 6-11; Acts x, 34-48). Then Paul and Barnabas declared what they had seen along similar lines in their missionary tour, telling of the wonders and miracles God had wrought among the gentiles by them (verse 12). We may imagine how profound the silence was as the council listened to the record of what we have been recently studying in chapters xiii and xiv. Then James, who seemed to be presiding at the council, summed up the matter and gave the decision that the believers among the gentiles must not be troubled about circumcision or anything unnecessary for them, but prove, by a life separated from all idol

The following is taken from the Indianapolis Star: The contract for the improvement of the Bluff road with concrete pavement was awarded to the Ewing Shields Company of Greenacastle yesterday by the county commissioners. The bid was $35,300, which was the lowest of five submitted. The road to be improved extends one and three-fourth miles from Meridian street, south to the township line.

A petition for divorce was filed in Superior Court, Room 5, yesterday by Carrie Bonkaung against Harry Bonkaung. The petitioner alleges that she met the defendant at Seymour, Ind., and that, although he was a foreigner, he, "by his address and great skill in acrobatics, influenced and induced her to marry him." The marriage, she says, took place on June 2, 1914, and on Aug. 28, 1915, they separated because, as she alleged, he continually abused her and often threatened to kill her.—Indianapolis Star.

Mayor John A. Ross was chosen as one of the delegates to the National Progressive convention in Chicago next month at the Fourth district convention in North Vernon. Resolutions were adopted to the effect that the Progressives of the Fourth district were hopeful that a compromise with the Republican Party could be brought about.

Fast Express train No. 18 on the Pennsylvania R. R. hit an automobile yesterday a few miles south of Waynesville. The train was traveling at a high rate of speed and to all appearances the men in the automobile did not hear the approaching train. In his excitement to either stop the car or speed across the track the driver "killed" his engine leaving the machine with one fender in such a position that it was in the path of the train. All of the six occupants of the car jumped just as the express hit the car. The machine was only slightly damaged and proceeded under its own power.

Mrs. O. H. Montgomery, who has been ill for several days at her home on North Walnut street, remains in a critical condition, although her physicians believe that she shows slight improvement over yesterday morning.

SHIPS DOG FOR TREATMENT.

Injured Pet Sent Halfway Across Continent to Surgeon.

Milwaukee, Wis.—Struck by an automobile in a Los Angeles street, a pet house dog belonging to Charles Dyer was shipped to Milwaukee by express to be treated because the Dyer family insisted on having their family dog surgeon care for the pet.

Dr. E. M. Sullivan, who had the dog under his care, had him around again in about a week's time. A telegram from Mr. Dyer preceded the arrival of the dog. "He will not take a prize at the kennel show," said the message. "but he is one of the family."

CHICKENS KNEW HER.

And Kansas Woman Had No Trouble Getting Them Back.

Wichita, Kan.—Mrs. John Matthews, residing on Kelly street, stopped abruptly in front of 312 West Third street one morning lately. Inside a chicken fence were many chickens. Among them were four large White Orpingtons. She observed them keenly.

"Those are mine," she said, satisfied, and then she sought out her husband. Together they went to city court and got out a search and seizure warrant.

Then, in company with William Ballard, deputy marshal, they went back again to 312 West Third street, opened the chicken yard gate and walked into the pen.

A woman ran out on the back porch and demanded to know what business the party had in her chicken yard.

"Just came after my chickens," retorted Mrs. Matthews as she called to her "pets." The four big chickens ran up to her, and she picked them up.

"I had 'em marked with blue ribbons," she told the marshal as she lifted the feathers on the legs. Sure enough there were the ribbons!

"Yours!" said the deputy marshal. "But the judge will have to act before you can have them."

THEIR "AT HOME" IN JAIL.

Bride and Bridegroom Accused of Not Telling Truth About Ages.

Hart, Mich.—Albert White a-wooing went—went all the way from Colfax township, Oceana county, to Battle Creek. Now he's back and with him the bride he won, but they spent their "at home" period in the Oceana county jail.

Their offense against the peace and dignity of the state, as formally alleged, was that they didn't tell the truth about their ages when they got their license to wed.

The banana peel in the path of love was an angry mother. Albert slipped up and dragged down his bride when Mrs. Mary Decker, who objected to Mamie getting married, heard that the girl swore she was eighteen when she was seventeen, as her mother reckons it. White, who gave his age as twenty, is said to be nineteen.

The families lived on adjoining farms in Colfax. Decker and his family moved to Battle Creek last August.

West Virginia Couple Married Amid Mummies and Antiques.

Charleston, W. Va.—With an Egyptian mummy as their only attendant and with thousands of antiques as the background Miss Laura Collins and Isaac Thompson, both of Comfort, Boone county, were married in the state department of archives and history by the Rev. A. J. Larabee of the Church of God, Winfield.

Asked why they chose such a peculiar place for the ceremony, the couple declared it was at the suggestion of the minister, who proposed a quiet place.

SOCIAL EVENTS

CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY.

Mrs. Mary Forsythe quietly celebrated her eighty-ninth birthday anniversary Thursday at her home on Indianapolis avenue. During the day many of her friends called to extend congratulations and she received many beautiful tokens. Among the gifts was a large birthday cake from Mrs. D. O. Dunn. On the cake were Mrs. Forsythe's name with the date of her birth and 1916. Mrs. Forsythe is in fairly good health at present. Several years ago she stumbled over a chair at her home and fell, fracturing her hip. Since that time she has not been active and for many months was unable to leave her bed.

H. B. CLUB

A very delightful meeting of the H. B. Club was held Thursday afternoon and evening with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Hamilton, West Second street, as host and hostess. The ladies came during the afternoon and enjoyed several hours with fancy needle work. At six o'clock their husbands arrived and an elegant dinner was served. The evening was spent playing Rook.

ECK-GILBERT.

Miss Adrian Eck and Benjamin Gilbert, both residents of the vicinity of Medora, were married in the office of County Clerk Willard Stout today. The marriage was a surprise to the bride's friends. When she left home she told them that she was going to Seymour to spend the day but instead purchased a ticket for Vallonia. She met Mr. Gilbert there and they came to Brownstown where the ceremony was performed by a Brownstown minister.

PICNIC PARTY.

A number of high school students enjoyed a delightful picnic at Rockford today. The dinner was spread in the woods. The members of the party were: The Misses Genevieve Brocker, Elsie Miller and Paul Hoffmann, Paul Becker and Willard Becker. Mrs. Brocker chaperoned a Brownstown minister.

FRESHMAN PICNIC.

The members of the Freshmen class of the Shields high school spent the day at Schneek's Grove, west of the city. They took well filled baskets with them and enjoyed a big dinner at the noon hour. The day was spent in various out-door games. Mrs. Jay C. Smith chaperoned the picnickers.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Miss Verna Johnson will be the honor guest at a surprise party this evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Johnson, east of the city. The young lady's friends planned the affair as she is soon to leave home and take up residence elsewhere.

17 SENIORS UNKISSED.

Class President Says They Are Crosses Between Heroes and Darned Fools.

Muskogee, Okla.—Of the thirty-five boy members of the senior class of Central high school in this city seven admit they have never kissed or been kissed.

Thomas Leech, president of the class, is not one of them. "As president of the class," he said, "I consider that the unkissed reflect great glory upon the seniors and upon Central high. As a man, speaking unofficially, I say I think they are darned fools or perhaps martyrs. That is what a martyr is anyhow—a cross between a hero and a darned fool."

The girl members of the class are put to mild astonishment at the revelation. One of them declared that she was "for starting a campaign for the benefit of the seventeen," and that, if necessary, she was perfectly willing to undertake the whole task by herself.

Thieves Stole House.

Deer Park, Wis.—Herman Larson purchased a farm in the vicinity of Frederic, in Polk county, and last summer built a house there and made preparations to move on the property, which he had been renting to neighbors. The other day he went up to Frederic ahead of his family, expecting to put things in readiness, when he found that the house had been carried off by thieves.

FATE PLAYS STRANGE PRANK WITH SAILOR

After Crossing Ocean In an Open Boat He Loses His Life In River

Lorain, O.—Ludwig Eisenbraun, a German sailor, who was drowned here recently in Black river, was treated very strangely by fate. Eisenbraun was the hero of one of the greatest feats in marine history, achieved when he crossed the Atlantic ocean in a nineteen foot dory.

After encountering furious storms at sea, facing death a score of times in his frail open boat, he lost his life when his hand slipped on an icy rope, which he was using to climb to the deck of a lake steamer on which he was a watchman, and fell back into the river.

On April 11, 1903, Eisenbraun sailed from Boston harbor in his dory, Columbus II. On Nov. 23 of the same year he docked his craft at Gibraltar.

Once in a storm his boat was capsized, and he lost water and provisions. He righted the boat, and two days later was reprovisioned by a British steamer.

He steered his craft against a sleeping whale, and the aroused monster nearly capsized him.

Eisenbraun had been a sailor on the great lakes for five years. He was forty-eight years old.
